Property Description

Sober and elegant, the residence presents a classic Parisian style architecture, reinterpreted by resolutely modern codes. It has wider windows than Haussmannian buildings and entirely custom-made railings. It thus integrates perfectly with the opulent spirit of the 12th arrondissement of Paris and the surrounding buildings.

The building is clad in light-coloured limestone which forms the grid of the façade. This allows for both a rigorous and repetitive arrangement of the elements while offering a play of solids and voids.

The Passage Saint-Mandé residence is located between rue du Niger and avenue de Saint-Mandé, in the heart of the 12th arrondissement.

The green environment of the residence provides a feeling of tranquility and well-being. Composed of a very limited number of dwellings, it has been designed to preserve the privacy of its residents.

Everything here has been designed for safety and comfort, including highly functional facilities (common areas, cellars, rooms dedicated to bicycles, green spaces).

Treat yourself to all the luxury of a modern residence which, through its construction, draws on ancestral artisanal know-how.

Buying French Property Just Got Easier...

The purchase process typically starts once you've visited a property with one of our agents and you made an offer on a property. Once your offer has been accepted, the property will come off the market and our local bilingual expert will liaise with you and the notaire. The compulsory searches are at the charge of the owner / vendor and are carried out at this stage.

You would have already been informed about the property taxes and legal fees (that incl. the stamp duty).

The agency fees are already included in the listed price on this document, there's no premium for the superior service we offer. You don't have to pay the deposit until the 'pre-contract' has been signed, and the 10 days cooling off period has expired. It takes an average of three months to buy a property in France.
