About Chatenay Malabry

Chatenay Malabry is located in Ile-de-France's Hauts-de-Seine region, about 15 kilometres southwest of Paris. It is also on the edge of the Essonne. The town of Chatenay Malabry has a modest area of around 6.3 kilometers². It features two valleys to the east and a plateau to the west.

Chatenay Malabry was established on a ridge crossed by a pilgrimage route that Saint-Jacques de Compostela led. It belongs to the Notre Dame de Paris chapter. During the 13th century, the parish was franked. It includes several hamlets, such as Malabry.

During the 19th century, it was an agricultural region, but it eventually became a residential community. Some of the prominent individuals who have called the town home include Eugene Sue and Chateaubriand. In 1920, it became a town known as Chatenay-Malabry. It then continued to grow and passed the 4,000 mark in 1936.

Commuters who work in Paris

During the last quarter of the 20th century, the town of Chatenay-Malabry continued to grow. Due to its urbanization, it has attracted several academic institutions and business parks. However, despite its growing population, the town's living environment has remained relatively intact. This area is a step of interest for visitors exploring the Parisian region. Also very suitable for commuters who work in Paris but want to find their peace in the outer forests of Paris.

Buying French Property Just Got Easier...

The purchase process typically starts once you've visited a property with one of our agents and you made an offer on a property. Once your offer has been accepted, the property will come off the market and our local bilingual expert will liaise with you and the notaire. The compulsory searches are at the charge of the owner / vendor and are carried out at this stage.

You would have already been informed about the property taxes and legal fees (that incl. the stamp duty). The agency fees are already included in the listed price on this document, there's no premium for the superior service we offer.
