Property Description

Built on the foundations of a building from the Middle Ages, which can be found in the basement, this late 18th century castle, with its warm white stone, clearly shows that it belongs to the Périgord.

Due to the number of rooms that cross over, it benefits from an unusual interior luminosity worthy of a modern-day architect's house, whilst also benefiting from the interior architectural features of its era.

In a dominant position over 180°, it offers approx. 9 ha (29.5 acres) of parklands with a very romantic bridle path, with no possibility of violating its privacy.

It has approx. 1,000 m² (0.25 acres) of living space but could be extended further.

In very good general condition, only some of the outbuildings could use some work, but there is no obligation to do so.

If you like the Dordogne, if you are sensitive to 18th century architecture, if you like peace and quiet and would like to 'freewheel', this castle will retain you or you will retain this castle, in any case I will be with you to do so.

Buying French Property Just Got Easier...

The purchase process typically starts once you've visited a property with one of our agents and you made an offer on a property. Once your offer has been accepted, the property will come off the market and our local bilingual expert will liaise with you and the notaire. The compulsory searches are at the charge of the owner / vendor and are carried out at this stage.

You would have already been informed about the property taxes and legal fees (that incl. the stamp duty). The agency fees are already included in the listed price on this document, there's no premium for the superior service we offer. You don't have to pay the deposit until the 'pre-contract' has been signed, and the 10 days calling off period has expired. It takes an average of three months to buy a property in France.
